BELLE GLADE — PAHOKEE, FL.

PARTIAL PAYMENT for Belle Glade's Airport Park came Monday morning when District Five Palm Beach County Commissioner Bill Bailey officially presented Mayor Ralph Kirk with a $50,000 check to help defray the $325,000 final cost of the park is estimated to be. With Bailey and Kirk are Belle Glade Commissioners Claude Tindall (far left) and Randy Davidson. Photo by Dean Jones

U.S. Sugar buys So. Bay Growers

CLEWISTON—United States Sugar Corporation announced today that the company had agreed in principle to acquire privately-owned South Bay Growers, Inc. and related companies of South Bay, Florida and certain businesses and landholdings owned by Billy Rogers, C.A. "Mutt" Thomas and their families for an estimated purchase price in excess of $80 million. Vegetable, cattle pasture and sugar cane landholdings in excess of 20,000 acres are expected to be acquired by U.S. Sugar as a result of this transaction.

South Bay Growers, Inc., whose 1979 sales exceeded $45.0 million, is one of the leading winter vegetable growers in the United States and is also involved in vegetable packing and distribution. South Bay Growers successfully introduced large-scale lettuce production to the South Florida winter vegetable market in the late 1960's and has become one of the largest domestic producers of celery and lettuce. Other businesses include sugar cane production and the operation of purebred and commercial cattle herds.

U.S. Sugar expects to operate South Bay Growers as a separate subsidiary which will continue to conduct its business under its present corporate name and management.

In his public announcement of the proposed acquisition, John B. Boy, President of U.S. Sugar, stated that "I believe the South Bay Growers acquisition will constitute a significant step towards the successful implementation of the diversification policy adopted by the Company in 1979 and is consistent with our intention to preserve U.S. Sugar's identity as an agribusiness company. We further believe that South Bay Growers will make a meaningful contribution to U.S. Sugar's earnings."

United States Sugar Corporation, whose 1979 sales exceeded $100.0 million, is a leading producer of cane sugar in the United States and has substantial cattle operations in Florida and Mississippi.

Brown Brothers Harriman & Co. is acting as financial advisor to the United States Sugar Corporation in connection with this transaction.

Charter being revised

BELLE GLADE—The city's election date and borough boundaries are only two of the provisions of the city charter that will remain the same if and when a proposal to update the charter goes to the voters.

The city commission has had a series of meetings on proposed changes of the charter and after being presented with position papers in two general sessions during a special session Thursday night, the commission had tentatively agreed to allow 16 sections remain the same and consider changes in eight others, while waiting for reports from the city attorney on two others.

Although the questions of the election date and the borough boundary changes weren't on the agenda to be discussed Thursday, they were brought up again in an effort by Commissioner Dorothy Walker to get the other four commissioners to one side the changes.

After a short discussion, Miss Walker agreed to drop the boundary discussion because the city is now under litigation on that question.

Boundary changes are only one of several items involved in a lawsuit filed by Florida Rural Legal Services attorneys on behalf of several citizens claiming racial discrimination.

Three of the commissioners, including Mayor Ralph Kirk and Commissioners Claude Tindall and Tom Altman, said they were adamant in opposing the change of the election dates.

Miss Walker said in an earlier meeting the date change should be the subject of a position paper by Richard G. Orman, a consultant, who has worked up proposed changes in the charter because she said she believed there are more potential voters in town in the spring than in September.

Altman said, however, he didn't want the position paper drawn up because this is one question over which his mind is made up and he felt it would be a waste of time for Orman and the commission.

Trailways leaves, Glades remains

BELLE GLADE—Trailways Bus Lines' last service through the Lake Okechobee area will be shut down on Aug. 1, following the July 1 statewide deregulation of truck and bus service but east to west service is expected to remain the same and possibly even improve.

Belle Glade agent Herman J. Odson said he received a letter Friday from W.L. Swindal, the Trailways District Supervisor, from his office in Tampa, that the one northbound and one southbound route passing through Belle Glade and Pahokee would be terminated on Aug.

1. Jack Wilkinson, however, who owns Glades Motor Lines, said his east to west service will continue running four times daily through Belle Glade and will expand to include Pahokee on at least two of the runs.

Wilkinson also said he will be shifting one afternoon schedule to allow Glades passengers bound for Orlando to reach that city only five minutes after they would normally reach it on Trailways' existing schedule.

Wilkinson said the afternoon west-to-east run through the Glades will come through some 30 minutes early to allow passengers to connect with an express bus leaving

West Palm Beach at 2:45 p.m. He said the Trailways express bus would reach Orlando at 5:50 p.m. compared to the 5:45 p.m. time the northbound bus from Miami now arrives in Orlando. see Bus 7A

Mental health group budget set

BELLE GLADE—A target date of Sept. 1 has been set for the newly-formed West Palm Beach County Mental Health Clinic to begin operating as a separate entity under its own director.

Five applications for the post of director are being considered with the appointment to be made sometime in July. Gene Cross, chairman of the M-H board, advised board members meeting Thursday night at the Glades Office Building.

Also to be named is a finance director to serve the western county separate catchment area which will administer mental health, alcohol and drug abuse services.

A $969,876 budget has been tentatively adopted for the Glades mental health program. A breakdown of expenditures includes: $283,239 for the crisis stabilization unit, $159,259 for medical services and $337,770 for outpatient costs. A total $75,188 is allocated for emergency service; $42,113 for socialization program and $72,307 for the Alpha drug prevention project.

Most of the funding will come from government sources, including $587,596 from the state, $150,881, county and $57,084 federal money plus a $33,042 migrant health grant. Fees are expected to raise an additional $60,000.

The $81,000 balance will be sought through a special request for $50,000 from the county and $31,000 through the community fund-raising efforts.

Meanwhile, efforts are underway to organize a community advisory council headed by Roswell Harrington to serve as a liaison between the board and the community needs and services.

Among the tasks delegated to the advisory council are establishing public information and education programs, and heading up fund-raising activities.

Members will include professionals in the area of health, education and social services, agency representatives and interested lay people.

Federal grant OK

WASHINGTON D.C.—Federal approval was given Monday for a $1.87 million loan-grant package to allow South Bay to make extensive improvements to its water system, according to an announcement by District 11 Congressman Dan Mica's office.

"The Farm Home Administration (FmHA) of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) specified the purpose of the government monies to the city is to be used for improvements of the water system," Mica said, "and enable the city to meet state water quality requirements."

Mica said the package consists of a loan of $695,000 and a grant of $1,175,200.

Pahokee all out for 4th

PAHOKEE—Freedom is really going to ring out here on the Fourth of July with a festival that promises something for everyone.

Skydivers, water skiers, raft races, country music, a chicken barbecue, games, and refreshments are all part of Friday's day-long program that will wind up with a gala display of fireworks.

Sponsored by the Pahokee Civic Pride Association and the Chamber of Commerce, the Freedom Festival will get underway at 11 a.m. with most activities scheduled on the lakefront.

A Lions Club chicken barbecue will begin serving at that time also at two sites, accommodating diners on the lake or inside the air-conditioned Lions Club.

The opening act will be Joe Stevens, the one-man band, followed at noon by a performance by the Gold Coast Ski Club of Delray Beach.

Raft races are scheduled from 1 until 3:30 p.m. From 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. it will be Lonnie Jolson time and 4:30 to 5, the Cowtown Cloggers will be on.

A skydiving exhibition is slated from 5 to 6 p.m. to be given by the South Florida Parachute Club. From 6 to 7:30 p.m. there will be a show by the Sunshine State Ski Club from Belle Glade.

A disco dance contest is planned from 7:30 to 8 followed by an hour-long concert of patriotic music.

A fireworks program will begin upon after dark and will be preceded by a torchlight performance by the Sunshine State ski club.

Throughout the day there will be planned activities including sack races, turtle races, and children's events. Booths will be selling refreshments, souvenirs, ice cream, homemade baked goods and fireworks, among other items.

BREAKING IN some of the new equipment at Airport Park Monday afternoon, while their elders were trying out the new softball fields, these small fry found it was quite a jump from this one platform to the ground.

STRIKE ONE at Belle Glade's new Airport Park's softball field came Monday night when Mayor Ralph Kirk took the pitcher's mound to throw the first official ball over home plate. The mayor knew it was a strike because the batter wasn't in the box and there was no umpire to say he didn't have it right in the groove when the ball went over the rubber.

Opinion

They're calling it The Noble Wines II but I'm not too sure what the title is. The seven-week course being offered this summer by Palm Beach Junior College shouldn't be The Noble Wines Too.

'S' funny thing but this is the second college course I've heard of recently concerning wines. The first one was up in Jacksonville about a week ago when I was on vacation. That was a course in how to make wine at home. This one's a course in how to taste wines... at home or elsewhere.

The news release waiting on my desk when I blew back into town Monday started off, "Because of the overwhelming community response to the first wine course..."

"Well, heck yeah, there's been an overwhelming response. Show me a course where for seven weeks you go to class to get snickered and I'm gonna show you a popular class. At least, it would've been one of the most popular classes around if it'd been offered when I was in college."

I can see the course prospectus now... Wine Tasting 301, Prerequisite: Wine Tasting 101 and 102, Home Brew 105, White Lightning 201 and membership in Alcoholics Anonymous. By this course, students are expected to be making their own home brew, starting with the cultivation of several species of grapes. Co-requisite: Running 301.

I'll have to give the people at the college an "A" for the time they're holding the class during the day, from 7:30 to 10 p.m., but as "B" for the night of the week, which is Tuesday. How in the name of the God Lord Harry can a body really get into wine tasting on a Tuesday night? It has to be a Friday or Saturday to get loose enough for that... doesn't it?

And what you, as a student, do they teach in a wine tasting course? Well, I may answer, they start off with white wine - varietal and regional characteristics and then move on to red wine - varietal and regional characteristics.

Those are the first two nights... sorta like a warm-up for the third week when you get into the blended wines - producer and regional. I figure blended probably includes some of the finer wines such as Rippie, Wild Russian Vanya and perhaps the best, which is made from the best raisins, sugar and potato peels the state can buy and the prisoners can confiscate on a mid-night raid.

Now, you can brag about your T.J. Nighttrain, you can talk about your Thunders and you can brag about the Annie Green Springs but you haven't lived until you've tried buck, and you probably won't live long after you do try it.

There's a mystery to me in the making of buck, by the way. I understand that to make wine, which I've never attempted, you have to use yeast or something to convert the sugar into alcohol. What I've never figured out about buck is how the yeast survives the smell. That's enough to gag a maggot I know. I've smelled an empty buck jar once and while I'm still around to talk about it, I don't usually. The memory isn't likely to go away no matter how hard I tried. It was at 2:33 in the afternoon of Tuesday, February 7, 1984. My nose has never been the same since and I can still see the flies dropping and the rats scurrying off the storehouse floor when the lid was taken off that jar. It wasn't until I'd staggered out the door myself that I noticed the vulture overhead swooping down on what he thought was dead meat, only to fall back himself.

Buck, needless to say, is fit only for human consumption and then only by men in desperate straits. That might be the interpretation of what's going to be studied the fourth night of the wine-tasting course under the title of International and Micro-climate differences or the continuation under the fifth week.

Damn sure couldn't be what they mean by Vintage character, the sixth subject, because when you talk about the vintage of buck, you refer to the hour and minute of yesterday, not the month or year.

Probably the most intriguing subject title of the course though, they held for last, Blind Tasting. Now that could mean slipping wine with your eyes covered in an attempt to impress the world by announcing, "V-e-e-s, this is a Mount Rothschild chablis blanc, vintage '63, grown in the south-east corner of the Nully vineyard and produced and bottled early in the season. It has the distinct stamp of that celebrated sommelier, Raul Leudoniere."

On the other hand, it could mean getting blind drunk and seeing if your taste buds will survive the onslaught of Bubba Rastor's buck, vintage of 3:30 a.m. yesterday, made from raisins and potato peels scrounged from the inmate's kitchen two months ago, guaranteed to be free of flies

SNAPPER Facts: Functional design; sensible price.

The rear engine design of a SNAPPER rider provides unrestricted visibility, less fatigue from engine heat, exhaust and noise, and a smoother cut resulting from less matting of grass in front of the cutting unit. With a short wheelbase, less weight on the front tires and no gears in the steering mechanism you get immediate response steering for cutting in tight places.

Add in: On-the-go adjustment of cutting height and speed; the floating cutting unit which minimizes scalping and damage.

Before you buy a rider, compare the quality and performance features of a SNAPPER. You'll find SNAPPER is worth more because it does more. And, its price is competitive with other quality mowers.

Any way you cut it... it's a snap with a SNAPPER!

Dunc's Almanac

by H.G. Duncan

I have been exposed, involuntarily, to a bombardment of media presentations which convince the unknowing that over one-half million veterans from the Viet Nam war who are suffering psychological impact from their experiences in that miserable country.

Kinda reminds me of the time the astronauts were preparing to make the first moon walk in 1969. There was an inevitable demonstration by the weirdos who felt that money could be better spent upgrading the standard of living of those who did not desire to earn their own way.

One particular well-known fraud, riding in a mule-powered wagon (taken to that wagon from his air-conditioned model in an air-conditioned automobile), made the stirring statement that the money used for fuel to get the rockets to the moon "would feed fifty million starving Americans."

Now, friends, in this welfare state called America, anyone in 1969 or in 1980 (with the possible exception of a number of old folks left in the backwaters of the welfare rapids) who is starving, fits into one of about three categories:

(1) a child who is being abused and neglected by adults; (2) one who is too damned lazy to get off his behind and get something to eat; or (3) one who is on a diet. I doubt that all three categories total the percentage figure of about 23 percent of our entire population presented by that piece of ass. Those disting (as I well know for many years, are often hungry. But starving - I doubt it.

Back to the veterans. I am one of the many who served. I served twice in Viet Nam during the late sixties. I did not spend all my time in the rear areas with all the goodies. I continued to serve the military after I left Viet Nam, as did a number of those with me. I cannot, from my observations, accept the figure of half million vets with psychological problems caused by being in Viet Nam.

Of course, we get into definitions. What psychological problems? Do these veterans suffer symptoms of neuritis not present in those who did not go to Viet Nam? Was the Viet Nam trip the cause of the symptoms? In some cases, to be sure!

I am sure that in that half-million figure are included a large number of drug addicts. Drug addiction is traditionally and erroneously blamed on the military.

Please allow me to dispel that myth. The propensity to use drugs is formed long before one is old enough to walk into a recruiting office. Drugs are merely a form of escape from stress, real or imagined. It is a means of running away. We all experience stress, and we all have means of dealing with it. Some of us have a couple of drinks after a trying day. Others jog. Some take a cold shower. A few go insane.

The military certainly and necessarily provides more than one's share of stress, but the means of dealing with that stress is an individual choice.

Any one who has read the book or seen the movie, "Johnny Got His Gun," could not feel anything except deep compassion for the truly scarred veteran of any war. That sympathy is a part of our national character, and is exploited by those who would like to tag veterans with more noble labels.

When the veteran came back from Viet Nam hooked on drugs, or dyed his hair, or bent his kids to death, or robbed a filling station, do not blame it on Viet Nam: put the blame where it belongs: On his character and personality, the bases for which were formed very early in life with the powerful assistance of monetary inducements.

There are not half million vets with psychological scars from their participation in Viet Nam unless you are liberal enough to include every conceivable thing, to blame every problem they have as being connected to their experiences in Viet Nam.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Sir:

The Herald-Observer published in their June 4th edition one article on Pahokee, a derogation amounting to a slur for P.H.S., one public service announcement for a local church, a blurb that a certain place in Pahokee had been used during a telethon, and an armed forces announcement for a local resident. This was unusual for the Herald-Observer - unusual in that so much coverage was given to Pahokee.

That is usual is for only one article on Pahokee to appear in the Herald-Observer.

The old Pahokee News has taken many changes over the years, but the latest change where it was merged into the Herald-Observer has all but knocked out the Pahokee coverage. In the past year, the Herald-Observer was printed on one occasion without a mention of Pahokee and on another with only a public service announcement of a church car wash. The name of your paper implies that the coverage will be given to Pahokee, but that has not been your practice. Generally speaking, most of what you print in the Herald-Observer about Pahokee, e.g. city council meetings, obituaries, major accidents, is printed in either of the two county-wide newspapers.

I have always been interested in events concerning Pahokee, and I have been very disappointed in your coverage of it in the last year. Immediately following the printing of this letter, I would like for you to explain to anyone interested in Pahokee why they should subscribe to the Herald-Observer.

Very truly yours,
Adrian Gabaldon

Editors Note:
It is one of the realities in the newspaper business that unlike a pie, news happenings, events, or features don't slice neatly into halves, geographically, or even chronologically, the title of a publication notwithstanding. It is always enlightening to hear from a concerned reader whether the message is one of praise or censure. In this instance, we can only reply that we welcome any input from Pahokee, as well as the other communities we serve, and endeavor to

Harney recreation project great idea

Glades County Commissioners got the ball rolling when they appointed a county recreation committee, consisting of Ross Bennett, Robert Gamble, Rodney Holbrook, Vance Storter and Ben Swendsen.

The committee has recommended that one of the two-mile dikes jutting out into Lake Okechobee alongside Harney Pond Canal near Lakeport be turned into a recreation area.

The dike currently has limited recreational uses, primarily for duck hunting and fishermen who have boats with which to ply the dike's farthest reaches.

There is no reason, however, why the gate which blocks the dike to the general public cannot be removed and a recreation complex, complete with parking area, boat ramps, and nature trail built.

One of the beauties of the project is the fact that nature be left undisturbed. There would be no dredging or destruction of natural fishing areas or of the refuge for other wildlife.

In fact, one of the centerpieces of the project is the construction of an observation tower, which would permit the lake's beauty and bird population to be enjoyed even more.

County commissioners have requested that the state of Florida turn over this land. We hope that Tallahassee will comply with the request.

This is a venture in which government functions best. We believe the quality of life for residents of the Glades can be directly improved by the addition of a new recreation area. Swimming, skiing, canoeing, camping and wildlife appreciation can take their proper place along with the hunting and fishing which are already being enjoyed there. We applaud the positive actions of everyone involved in this worthy project.

The caring place

Efforts to create a new "Caring Place" at Glades General Hospital were reinforced last week when the hospital board took a giant step toward creating a day care center for the children of employees.

And before someone jumps out to say this is only caring for employees as opposed to patients, it should be pointed out the reason for the day care center is to make the hospital a more attractive place of employment for badly needed nurses and other professionals in the medical field.

Without at least a minimum staff of personnel of the caliber required, it's impossible for Glades General or any other hospital to provide the care for patients which they require and anyone who doesn't believe there's an acute shortage of medical personnel need only glance at the want ads in any daily newspaper.

The day care center will reinforce steps begun last month to allow local people to take at least their first year of training for a nursing career at Palm Beach Junior College-Glades.

And that can only benefit the patients of area hospitals.

Americans be proud of it

Editor: This Friday is the Fourth of July, celebrating our country's 204th year of independence. The Veterans of our area ask that all residents who can fly the flag to show our love for our country.

Though the United States may have its faults, we still have the best way of life going for us, a way of life that millions have fought and died to preserve.

America, You can love it. You can find fault with it, but support it, for it is ours, bought and paid for with the blood of our fathers, sons and brothers.

Editor: It is pleasant to see the article about Mr. John B. Coffey, who is on the way to the U.S. Senate. I am happy to see him run. I like his background. I feel that we do need a change. We need some very realistic people in our U.S. Senate. As Mr. Coffey says, our very government is threatened by the poor management of policy that we have had for some time. I was sorry that The Miami Herald did not mention his brilliant military career in the article of 6/16/80 about the meeting at Sanibel Island. I feel that that should be emphasized. It is up to us to help ourselves with casting our votes for our best interest.

Support local 4th plans

Dear Community Members: This week I had my first special pleasure of a sunset, boat ride from the Pahokee pier, around Cramer Island and back through Belle Glade rim canal. Some of you travel this path as a part of your job, others take the ride for enjoyment, but more of us have probably forgotten the calm and peace among the trees as the sun sets on the glassy water. This is just one of many experiences available in Pahokee. Our community is comprised of people who are sincerely concerned about the needs of others and have an interest in the positive growth of this area. I saw and in turn felt community dedication with the renovation of the Prince Theatre. This plus other similar activities, has made it obvious that the town of Pahokee has a great deal to be proud of. But sometimes it is our community spirit which gets pushed back on the list of personal priorities and as a result everyone suffers.

Although our families will be vacationing in other places this summer, many community members will be home for the 4th of July weekend. In the past the Chamber of Commerce clubs and organizations have participated in the annual celebration held on the dike, with fireworks, food and entertainment. Freedom Festival 1980 has been planned to be the best yet, but in order for a complete success and continuation of the 4th of July events, our community must give its full support. Pahokee has the potential, if we have the pride. If you have not already made plans, please come join and be an important part of our independence day celebration.

Sincerely,
Kathi Ligon
President of the Pahokee Business & Professional Women's Club.

Shipyard information

Dear Sir: When the Boston Naval Shipyard closed in 1974, many of my former coworkers decided to make the Sunshine State of Florida their permanent home and are living in the areas of Greater Miami, Hollywood, Fort Lauderdale, Tampa, Key West, Saint Petersburg, Daytona, Orlando and Jacksonville, in fact every Florida County.

Hundreds of men and women who worked in ships and aboard ships are unaware that during their Navy Department employment at the shipyard, they were exposed to asbestos fibers and dust which they inhaled into their lungs. Medical science now tells us that this can cause asbestosis or lung cancer 20 or 30 years after the first exposure.

I have important, vital information for my former coworkers and would like to correspond with them.

Reader tells of faith

Dear Editor: I'd like to say a few things about peace. It is knowing our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. If you don't know Jesus, you should consider the stakes. He saved me; took away the debt of sin from my life. He sanctified me and Baptized me in the Holy Ghost. He gave me freedom that I never had experienced in my life - a joyful peace within.

I started my walk with the Lord a little over a year ago and I go to church at the Church of God in Moore Haven, where the Lord rules in our services. My Pastor's name is Doyle Williams, and

I would like to say that he and his family have been an inspiration to me and my family in helping us grow in the Spirit of the Lord. And at this time, I'd like to tell the community and the world that Jesus is my Lord and Saviour.

Good and bad news... In latest economic figures

The latest economic statistics released by the Southwest Florida Regional Planning Council are a customary mixture of good and bad news.

Considering there is a recession on, perhaps we should be thankful that it isn't all bad news.

First the bad news. Region-wide from April 1979 to April 1980, the consumer price index rose 15 percent. Costs increased the fastest for transportation (21 percent) and housing (17 percent) and the slowest in food and apparel (seven percent). Gross sales declined 7.1 percent in Hendry

County from April 1979 to April 1980—a decline from $17.6 million to $14.5 million.

Gross sales consist of wholesale and retail sales. Hendry County was the only county in the region to register a decline. In addition, unemployment in Hendry County increased three-tenths of a percent from April to April, arriving at 5.9 percent.

Now for the good news. Glades County's gross sales increased 6.3 percent during the most recent reporting period to $2.2 million.

In taxable sales,

Hendry County led the region with a 76.6 percent increase, totaling $7 million. Hendry's April 1979 figure stood at $3.9 million. Taxable sales in Glades County increased 3.5 percent, up to $766,563.

Glades County registered a 2.5 percent drop in unemployment from April to April, dropping to 5.9 percent—same as in Hendry County.

Telephone customers increased in both counties. Hendry County customers were up 9.2 percent to 6,510, while Glades County's increased 3.9 percent to 1,181.

Procedure for getting on ballot is unfair

Independent U.S. Senate Candidate Lori Wilson was in Palm Beach County this past weekend as part of her campaign to get enough signatures to get on the ballot in November... a task she says is blatantly unfair.

We agree. Mrs. Wilson, as a senatorial candidate, will have to get at least three percent of the state's registered voters to get on the ballot, a feat first performed by Belle Glade's own Dr. John Grady, when he ran for the same Senate seat six years ago.

The three percent total is required in the state constitution in what is referred to as the initiative requirement. It is more than required in any other state and, oddly enough, is also more than the number of signatures required to get on the Florida ballot if the candidate is running for president of the United States.

If John Anderson wants to get his name on the Florida ballot in November, he only has to get one percent of Florida's voters to sign his petition, which amounts to 42,172 voters compared to the 128,516 Mrs. Wilson will have to get statewide.

Certainly, there should be some requirement made for would-be candidates to meet regarding numbers of signatures of voters. If there were no such requirement, the ballots would be even longer than they now are and who knows how many of the candidates would be crackpots with no chance of winning.

But an indication of how difficult the task is can be seen in that Dr. Grady is still the only candidate to win a place on a state-wide ballot as a representative of a third party for a Senate seat. No one has ever made it as an independent candidate.

That record should speak for itself. George Wallace is the only other candidate to make it on a ballot for a statewide ballot and that was for president. Still, no independent candidate has ever made it and that means the requirements are too stiff.

But if one percent is good enough for president, surely, it should be enough for the senate.

Tax ordeal, is there a better way?

The Congress shall have the power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived...

Thus says the 16th Amendment, proposed by the Congress and ratified by the states in 1913.

Congress had attempted to levy a tax on incomes earlier, only to have the law declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

Now that the annual ordeal of April has ended, we can reassess this country's 67-year experience with the income tax.

It has served the nation well, financing two world wars and the recovery from the Great Depression. It has depended upon a system of self-collection, and our good citizens have shown remarkable responsibility in assessing themselves and paying up. Few other nations are able to make such a system work.

But over the years the system has become intolerably complex. It takes a self-foot shelf of books to hold all the tax regulations. Instead of serving simply as a system to collect money, it has become the instrument of various social and political causes. There are signs that complacency is beginning to crumble.

Wealthy taxpayers hire experts to find loopholes. Tax crusaders proclaim the virtues of tax avoidance. Cheating is said to be widespread among the middle class. Cash and barter are used more and more as a means of tax evasion. Criminals hide vast sums from the collector and even respectable businessmen have Swiss bank accounts. An army of bureaucrats can't cope with all this and Congress refuses to give the Internal Revenue Service enough of a budget to do the job.

Early in this century, there was no more important item on the progressive agenda than the establishment of an income tax.

There is little hope that Congress can improve the situation. Every time an attempt is made in Washington to reform the income tax, a horde of lobbyists descends upon the Capitol. The hallways are crowded, and every lobbyist has a loophole he wants to defend or create in the law. Inevitably the result is more complex, less equitable legislation. The Internal Revenue Code comes to resemble Swiss cheese in texture and Limburger cheese in odor.

It is perhaps time to consider reducing our reliance on the federal income tax. A federal sales tax or value-added tax is the obvious alternative. Such a tax would encourage investment and saving because instead of taxing interest and dividends, it would tax consumption. It would be easy to collect, hard to evade. Even criminals would pay their fair share, on their purchases of luxury cars and houses.

It would be difficult to live on, but it would be simple to pay, simple to collect, fair to all. It would encourage individuals to accumulate capital, which is the engine that drives the capitalist system and gives it vitality. A century ago, reformers crusaded for the income tax. It may be time for a new crusade.

and should be made impossible to use such a tax system for any social purpose, however worthy, other than the collection of revenue.

The argument that such a tax would fall heavily upon the poor is invalid. Studies have shown the spending of the rich usually conforms to their income, and taxing at the point of sale nicks the big spenders who can avoid the income tax.

The tax would be simple to pay, simple to collect, fair to all. It would encourage individuals to accumulate capital, which is the engine that drives the capitalist system and gives it vitality. A century ago, reformers crusaded for the income tax. It may be time for a new crusade.

Wilkinson said he is also considering expanding the Glades Motor Lines service to the Belle Glade, South Bay and Pahokee areas, possibly adding West Palm Beach International Airport to the scheduled stops and beginning excursions to such attractions as Disney World.

Wilkinson also met with Belle Glade attorney Robert Mathews, who owns the building now housing the Trailways bus station on Southeast Avenue E. on Tuesday and Glades Motor Lines will pick up Trailways' lease on Aug. 1 to maintain the facility as the city's bus terminal.

He noted that by catching the Glades Motor Lines bus, passengers can also make connections with Greyhound lines in West Palm Beach or Fort Myers, or travel directly to Tampa on the Glades Lines coach if they wish.

"We're going to continue to provide service to the Glades area," Wilkinson said, "regardless of the decision."

Speaking for trailways from mon brought up Thursday was whether the city's department heads should be under the City Services Board.

Ormon said he thought they shouldn't come under the board because of the necessity that they work well with the city management.

As of now, City Manager Robert Sanders told the commissioners, the Public Works Director is the only department head who doesn't come under civil service. Ormon recommended the others should be grandfathered in under civil service but their replacements should be exempted from the board.

Altman said he felt the department heads should remain under civil service because they were usually career employees, "and to a career employee, the continuity aspect is important if we want to compete with private industry."

The commission agreed to accept Ormon's recommendation, however, after Ormon and Sanders noted that for every good employee the city would keep because of their protection by the civil service board, they would have a "deadhead."

That question brought up another question when Altman commented that the civil service board should be serving at the pleasure of the commissioner. Mayor Kirk and Commissioners Randy Davidson and Claude Tindall agreed, with Walker demurring again.

In further discussion, the commission agreed to several changes in their method of drawing up ordinances, mostly to conform better to state law, usually where the charter has been at odds with state laws passed since the charter was written.

In card discussions, the commission:

- Directed City Attorney John Baker to research state law to see if there is a law setting up an initiative and referendum procedure to allow residents to change or make city law or to hold recall elections. The present charter makes no mention of the initiative procedure.

- Decided to change the gender "references in a charter to both genders or a neutral reference, rather than continue the use of "he," "his" and other male references.

- Decided to set up two weeks rather than one week as the time between a general city election and a run-off election.

- Decided to include in the charter an oath which would require city commissioners to continue to reside in the district for which they qualified or forfeit the office being held.

After finishing discussion on the various questions of the charter, the commissioners agreed the next step would be for Ormon to get together with the city attorney and draw up a draft of the charter which would include the changes they agreed to.

Once the draft is drawn up, the commission will decide on whether the draft should be put to a vote and when the vote should be held. The vote would decide whether the changes would be incorporated into the charter or not.

law which regulated the trucking and bus industries. It was one of several laws that was reviewed by the legislature under the state's sunset law and deregulation occurred without the legislature taking a direct act rather than as the result of a law being passed.

Tuesday was also the day President Jimmy Carter signed into law a bill which will greatly relax interstate trucking regulations, although the federal law isn't as sweeping as the deregulation which came about when the Florida legislature failed to renew the state law.

The effects of deregulation are now considered to be a matter for conjecture. Proponents claim deregulation will result in more efficient freight and passenger service and lower fares and Bob Grant did on Tuesday. Trailways also took action that day to institute a 10 per cent reduction in fares and discounts for senior citizens and children.

On the other hand, another effect was expected to be a decrease in rural areas where the freight and passenger rates don't pay for themselves and Belle Glade, Pahokee and South Bay were among the first small cities in the state to fall victim to that result of deregulation.

'MYTH' AMERICA

An oft repeated "myth" is that an electric utility has a "guaranteed profit." One even can find this erroneous statement in news journals. The fact is, a utility has a ceiling on its rate of return and only the opportunity to reach its allowable return.

Public utility regulation takes the place of competition. It is designed to insure that utilities do not make an excessive return on investment.

Briefly, the law allows public utilities an opportunity to earn a fair and reasonable return, an amount determined after lengthy public hearings. There is no guarantee of profit.

WITH LETTUCE, PICKLE, TOMATO AND 41,000 federal and state regulations. That's the number of decrees governing an American favorite, the hamburger. These stem from 200 laws and 11,000 precedent-setting court cases. Colorado State University estimates that regulations add 8 to 11 cents per pound to the cost of the hamburger.

SOLAR PROJECTS UP BY 24%. A survey of the utility industry's solar programs by the Electric Power Research Institute shows that the number of projects underway in 1979 increased by 24% over the previous year. Over 180 individual utility companies are involved and a commitment of about $20 million.

FFWC ANSWERS THE QUESTION. The Florida Federation of Women's Clubs asked, "What does the FFWC have in common with electric utilities?" And answered, "We share a deep concern for finding solutions to the current energy situation." The Federation cited several Florida organizations and businesses, including Florida Power & Light, for outstanding support of energy conservation measures.

Builders organizing

BELLE GLADE—Some 20 building contractors and allied businessmen gathered Monday morning to explore the possibilities of organizing under the Palm Beach County Home Builders and Contractors Association (HBCA).

HBCA officers and members who were present in the organization effort said they were trying to enlist members from among the Glades' builders and developers and associate members from a wide range of other businessmen, including subcontractors, bankers, realtors, attorneys and owners of appliance and hardware stores. The thrust of their message was that members of the building industry need representation on a county, state and federal level and that when the building industry is healthy, it means business is good for a large number of businessmen only indirectly associated with the industry. Executive Vice President Lou Lawder pointed out to the prospective members of the Association's workers' compensation plan, a form of self insurance began two years ago, paid 20 per cent dividends over last year's premiums.

Angling during cooler hours recommended

July fishing forecast

By Lorne Racicot

Summer is here. Let there be no doubt. So what can we expect for the month of July? Well, for openers, you can expect a lot of very hot weather. You can also expect, in a normal July, more rain showers.

While June is considered as a "rain" month, past records indicate that, on the average, more liquid sunshine falls in July. So, what's with the fishing? For those who give the matter a little thought and planning this month can be a very good one. First, take a page out of the bass club books and plan to get up before breakfast. One should be on the water at first light or as soon as possible thereafter. For the first several hours after sunrise the bass will frequent the shallows and actively feed.

Once the sun makes its presence felt they will usually move to extremely heavy cover or to the deeper holes and drop-offs. In the case of the former, the vegetation is so thick it is next to impossible to get a lure down into productive waters. This being the case one is well advised to consider fishing the "structures" there. Usually, but not always, consist of channel edges where, by experimenting, one can locate deeper areas with rock or shell bottoms.

A good quality depth finder can add immeasurable value to locating such places. As a matter of fact it will pay dividends to mark each location on a map or your own chart for future reference. Once you have a number of such locations pin-pointed you can plan your outing in a manner that will allow you to fish each one and thus increase your chances of success.

It is no accident that nonsistent producers achieve the results they do by sheer luck. The same situation holds true for fishing the shallows. Whether you are an early morning fisherman or one who fishes the late afternoons and early evenings you will find that if you plan your trip by locating productive areas and follow your game plan your success ratio is going to rise.

In any event, planning your itinerary in advance, will result in far more actual fishing time per trip than getting your boat in the water then trying to decide where to go. In the planning stage one should always consider alternate areas as the lake is not always like a mill pond in the early a.m. or late p.m. When the water is whitecap fishing is often difficult and sometimes impossible.

Having your charts marked up to allow for any given wind direction and velocity will greatly increase not only your fishing pleasure but also the end result, which is the name of the game.

Live shiners can be surprisingly productive during the summer months. An example of this, let me give you details of an incident that occurred Sunday last. After beating the shallows from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Monkey Box and Moonshine Bay areas with a friend I dawned on us that we had seen little bass activity since 10 a.m. in the shallows.

We decided to head into the old Moore Haven channel and fish the Rim Canal edges. The idea seemed like a good one and was, but not for us. We raised one bass and caught another whose size indicated that it should be returned to its mother to complete the weaning stage. It was getting really hot so we decided to give up the activity entirely.

We returned to the dike ramp at Moore Haven and ramped out. While we were engaged we kept our eye on two fishermen anchored directly across from the ramp and fishing live shiners from an anchored boat at the mouth of the old channel.

In the short time it took us to load out they headed five nice bass! Not big ones, but nice eatin' size. This in the middle of the day and in the blazing sun the temperature of the air had to be well up in the 90s! To each his own, as they say. It was obvious these fishermen had done their homework and knew exactly the area the fish were "using." at that particular time. We had covered about 16 miles of choice waters and practically struck out. These fellows covered about 250 feet of water and were really, in business.

A word on shiners. Fishermen who prefer to fish this way tell me that at this time of year use the medium shiner rather than the large. They use the large ones when they plan to fish peppergrass beds or deepwater structures where the opportunity of getting into larger fish is highly likely.

For the fishermen who likes to pursue his quarry with artificials, the same thing holds true. Set up your outing in advance. You may like the results.

There is another advantage to prior planning which may, one day, pay handsome dividends. Smart fishermen always let someone know where they are going and their anticipated time of return.

Should motor failure occur or there is some other extenuating circumstance, the time of return at the appointed hour SOMEONE is going to know where you are most likely to be. It is worth thinking about. If more fishermen followed this practice there would be far fewer people stranded on this or any other lake for an overnight stay. If it has never happened to you, just remember, it could. A little forethought could reduce these happenings to a minimum. "An ounce of prevention..."

There is a tendency among fishermen to go to smaller rivers in July and for a good reason. The fish bass prey on are smaller at this time of year than they will be later on, therefore, it follows that a smaller lure is the order of the day. And smaller lures add to smaller, lighter tackle adding to your pleasure not inconsiderably.

Today's lures are so lifelike in appearance as to be almost unreal in their resemblance to the real McCoy. More importantly, they work! Your marina, fish camp and tackle shop people can tell what has been producing best at any given time.

They can also tell you how to fish the lure for best results. This can mean the difference between no catch and a tasty repeat of freshly cooked fillets.

Panfish will remain active throughout the month and particularly over the July 4 holiday weekend. About two or three days prior to the full moon (June 27) the Bluegill and Shinerlarks should be back to their bedding activity.

This activity should last for a week or more, bluegill for a longer period than the shinerlark. The difference between 'gill and 'cracker is easy to spot. The 'gill makes much larger bed. It is as if he had one objective in mind. That is to populate the entire lake from one bed. The 'cracker is not quite as optimistic. He makes a bed of sufficient size to populate his immediate area and for him this is sufficient.

Bluegill will bed in water in excess of five feet in depth while the shinerlark prefers to build his domicile, or honeymoon cottage, in water less than 15 inches deep. Live worms for the shinerlark and the same plus live crickets for bluegill will produce consistently. So there you have it. Plan ahead. Spend a little time locating the areas the fish are using. For the most part plan on fishing the cooler parts of the day. That means early and late. Let someone know where you are going and make it a point to return at the appointed hour. July is upon us. Make it a point to enjoy it.

What's with leaders?

The other day, while in LaBelle, a gentleman asked me what kind of leaders should be used with ultra light tackle and with fly lines.

When using ultra light, you are talking of a reel spooled with four or six pound line. Fishing fairly weedy waters will cause abrading or "feathering" of your line with the repeated casting necessary.

While it is true that an additional length of a heavier test line can be spliced to your regular line this can result in lessening of casting and length of line more visible to the fish.

Since you have gone to the lighter line in the first place to reduce visibility, among other factors, it follows that the addition of heavier line in action, in part, defeat the purpose. The best course of action, really, is to periodically examine your terminal tackle for signs of wear.

For bass a leader made up of 42 inch of 30 pound test there's a good reason for this! Followed by 21 inch of 20 pound and another 21 inch of your tippest choice of 15, 12 or ten pound test is easy to cast, will "Roll" over and will present the bug in a very acceptable manner. The reason for the 30 pound line is that it not only matches, usually, the end diameter of your fly line but it is also the backbone of your taper. The same holds true for the smaller bugs used for panfish. While 30 pound test can be used for the butt section of the leader it is not absolutely necessary when using the smaller, less air resistant bugs. A 42 inch butt section of 30 pound followed by 21 inches of 12 pound and 21 inches of six or eight pound works very well.

The foregoing is not to say that this is the leader you should use. It is simply an illustration of one that is gaining in popularity with more and more fly fishermen. You can work out the length of each section to your own satisfaction and requirements.

A rule of thumb is that the butt section should be twice the length of the middle and tippest sections combined. A six foot leader, for example, would be 36 inches of butt section followed by an 18 inch cause the bug to "roll" over prior to striking the water. There is a happy medium between the simple and the sublime in leaders and one that many fishermen have found to be the answer. The larger the bug the more air resistance a reasonable length leader has a great advantage over the very long ones (which, as before stated, are not necessary for our kind of fish).

For bass a leader made up of 42 inch of 30 pound test there's a good reason for this! A rule of thumb is that the butt section should be twice the length of the middle and tippest sections combined. A six foot leader, for example, would be 36 inches of butt section followed by an 18 inch center section and an 18 inch tippest.

While on the subject of leaders, a mistake frequently made by fly rodgers is that they will use an extremely soft and flexible leader. This makes for difficult casting and little or no control of the cast.

A number of manufacturers make up kits of various test leader material. The usual kit contains test of from two to 40 pound spools and come 1/2 dozen to the kit. This material is fairly stiff and does an excellent job.

They can be quite expensive however. A fully acceptable material for leader purposes are those spools of "mill end" line found in every place tackle is sold. While it is usually used by the canoe devotee its inherent properties make it an excellent leader material. It is inexpensive and comes in just about any test you could ask for.

Fishing Tips

Rubber Waders are still the most desirable. This from a research organization. They are also expensive so it behooves the owner of a pair to make them last as long as possible. Most waders are thrown away, not because of rips or large punctures, but because of the checking that occurs along fold creases and stress points. These checks are usually very minute and very difficult to spot. If you have this problem there is a way to extend the life of them beyond the normal. Get a tube of Clear Silicone caulking so that you can work it into the cracks as you proceed along. Since this is a fast setting substance you will have to work quickly. Once applied allow it to stand for 24 hours after which it will be fully cured. After curing you will have a tough, almost invisible seal that will outlast other patching methods and really extends Wader life.

Area fishing report

Mrs. Pat Childress of the Jolly Roger Marina in Clewiston tells us bass fishing has been a little on the spotty side. Spoon and stick combinations, spinner baits and plastic worms are taking fish however. Bluegills are active in the Rim Canal, peppergrass beds and the spoil bank areas off the main channel. Live crickets and small spinner baits are getting the job done. Jay Heise of Buckhead Ridge Marina also says bass are spotty but it is evident they are beginning to school. When you get into a school the action is fast and furious. Small live shiners, spinner baits and blue grape plastic worms are your best bet. At the J. Mark Camp in Belle Glade, Jim Mark advises that bass have been biting well on crank baits and plastic worms in the Rim Canal edges. Look for water about 20 feet deep where there is a rock, shell or sandy bottom.

There is evidence of bedding activity which should increase within the next few days. The water is still rolled up by the winds we've been having so unless you are familiar with actual bedding areas the Rim Canal will be the better place to try your luck.

Pahokee Goodwill store to celebrate 16th year

By AILSA DEWING

PAHOKEE — Stories abound of treasures found in a Goodwill Thrift Store. Of jewels of great price found in the junk jewelry. Rare first editions amid the second-hand books. Antiques among the bric-a-brac. And the local thrift shop is no exception.

Store manager Naomi Ellington can recall the man who discovered a sparkling gem in the store's stock of jewelry, bought it and had it appraised, to learn it was indeed a diamond.

An old doll that lay among the toys was eagerly bought for $10 by a lady.

"It was just an old doll," says Mrs. Ellington. But the lady explained that it was an antique doll worth many times its bargain store price.

And the Pahokee store has its regular browsers who rummage through the jewelry for trinkets containing 18K gold and search the shelves for silver plate, says Mrs. Ellington.

Not all thrift shop customers, of course, are searching for pearls of great price. Most shoppers are merely trying to stretch their dollars by buying more for less whether it's clothing, furniture or dishes.

And where do the super bargains come from? They're among the carloads of cast-offs donated to Gulfstream Goodwill Industries to help support the organization's program of helping the handicapped.

Much of it comes from housewives — the result of cleaning out closets, attics, and garages. But some is new merchandise from unsold stock that accumulated in warehouses or left over from a store's clearance or going-out-of-business sale.

Each Wednesday a truck arrives at the Pahokee store from the central facility in West Palm Beach, loaded with presorted merchandise that includes furniture, appliances, clothing, books, and other assorted oddments.

All are priced even below bargain-basement range and the proceeds go to help handicapped workers, paying them a salary and funding rehabilitation programs that teach new skills and trades.

According to Mrs. Ellington, the Pahokee store is one of the most popular ones in the area, serving some 200 customers a week including many who come from as far distant as Okeechobee and Ft. Pierce.

This month the Pahokee store is celebrating its 16th anniversary. It was first operated by the St. Petersburg Goodwill facility. In 1987 it became part of the newly-organized Gulfstream Goodwill Industry.

To celebrate the anniversary, Pahokee's thrift shop will hold a three-day sale. Starting Monday, July 7, the store at 279 S. Lake Ave., will drop its prices even lower.

Mrs. Ellington isn't holding out any promises of priceless gems or Dior originals but a treasure can also lie in the eyes of a beholder. "Maybe you'll find the picture frame you've been searching for or a pot lid just the size you need," she says.

Whatever, you can be sure the price is right and it's all for a good cause.

Every day is sundae with mix and match sauces

There's no end to the variations in serving ice cream, one of America's favorite desserts. Not only are there countless flavors, there are toppings and sauces that let you carry the diversity even further.

One of the fun ways of serving ice cream is to provide two or three different kinds with the same number of sauces for an interesting mix and match. It's a "make your own sundae" that can be used as a special snack or a finale to a meal.

Pineapple juice, strawberries and blueberries make a tasty, colorful combo for those who like "the berries." Eggs give the sauce its custard-like consistency.

When you soak raisins in rum overnight, they'll be plump and flavorful. Drain the raisins and use the rum in an uncooked, custard-like sauce to which you add whipped cream and the raisins, of course. It's quite sensational on chocolate ice cream.

PINEAPPLE FRUIT SAUCE

- 1/4 cup unsweetened pineapple juice
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 6 tablespoons butter
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1/2 cup sliced unsweetened strawberries
- 1/2 cup unsweetened blueberries
- Butter pecan ice cream

Combine pineapple juice, lemon peel, butter and sugar in a small saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until butter is melted and sugar is dissolved. Stir a small amount of hot mixture into eggs; return all to saucepan. Cook over medium heat until slightly thickened, stirring constantly. (Do not boil.) Cool to room temperature, then refrigerate until cold. Gently stir fruit into sauce just before serving. Spoon over scoops of butter pecan ice cream.

CREAMY PECAN SAUCE

- 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1/4 cup dark corn syrup
- 1/2 cup whipping cream
- Dash salt
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup pecan halves
- French vanilla ice cream

Combine brown sugar, syrup, whipping cream and salt in a medium-sized saucepan. Stir in butter. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture boils. Reduce heat to low and simmer, stirring constantly, 5 minutes. Cool to serving temperature. Stir in vanilla and pecan halves. Serve warm over French vanilla ice cream.

FLUFFY RUM RAISIN SAUCE

- 1/2 cup seedless raisins
- 6 tablespoons white rum
- 2 egg yolks
- 1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1 cup whipping cream
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- Chocolate ice cream

Combine raisins and rum in small shallow bowl; cover with plastic wrap. Let stand at room temperature overnight. Drain raisins; reserve rum. Beat egg yolks in a small mixing bowl until thick and lemon colored. Beat in sugar until dissolved. Gradually beat in reserved rum and lemon peel. An hour before serving, beat whipping cream and vanilla until stiff peaks form. Gently fold egg yolk mixture into whipped cream. Fold in raisins. Refrigerate, covered. Serve over chocolate ice cream.

Picture it. You are sittin' before the television set watching a suspense-packed movie, munching on a bowl of popcorn as fast as the 'um beats in the music, when they break for another commercial. One every ten minutes. The disgust is overwhelming. Or so you thought, until you hear the commercials. Then you know for sure that you are about to be sick.

"We're gonna give you a test Mrs. Blah. See if you can pick the correct answer." Bleep. "Sorry, Mrs. Blah, wrong answer." "But, guess what? We're gonna give you another chance." (And she better get it right this time!) Then we move onto the commercial that features a girl (woman) in a little polka-dotted dress and patent-leather shoes swaying to the music and singin' a bank commercial. Oh, Uchi!

"Fade out. New commercial. Kathy. Rigaby being very frank and talkin' bout things in front of my eight and ten-year olds that I'd just as soon see discussed in the privacy of her own gym locker. Let'er tell it to her sweat socks.

Then just as you think you've truly had enough, the answer comes in the pained face of a gentleman with a distended stomach who declares INADVERTENT, Pepto Bismol. Bring on the bottle.

When the question arises as to why do they put on such garbage, the answer is obvious. Whether you like it or not, whether you agree or disagree, they did it, they got your attention. Even if you hated the commercial, you remember it, and the product. Their purpose has been served.

I was given the chance Sunday to play cowgirl for the first time when I was told that I could ride along while Bob checked the ranch out at 20

Mile Bend.

We got up early that morning and I donned my cowgirl clothes, jeans, western shirt and tennis shoes. (Oh, well, give me a break, you didn't expect me to invest a hundred bucks in cowboy boots just for one day on the range did ya?)

We loaded up in a four wheel drive truck to go out and check the pastures, cows, bulls, and watering troughs and right off I notice that my seat doesn't have a back, just a bar.

Well there went my idea of sittin' back and relaxing as I watched the countryside roll by. I would have to lean forward and hang on to a heavy bar located right above the glove box. And hang on I did. That was the roughest ride I've ever taken. The hills, valleys, ruts and pot holes were enough to shake your teeth loose. And talk about some mean lookin' bulls. I wouldn't cavort with a cape to even the skinniest bull in the bunch.

We finished just before lunch and believe me I was ready for my WD pot roast. We settled for Oscar Mayer.

Didn't I tell you those commercials would get you?

Taking it From the Top

By REV. DAVID T. EVANS
Everglades Presbyterian Church

Shakespeare said, "But be not afraid of greatness: some men are great, some achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrust upon them."

Jesus Christ said, "You did not choose, but I chose you and appointed that you should go and bear fruit and that your fruit should abide; so that whatever you ask the Father in my name, He may give it to you." John 15:16.

Each of us has greatness thrust upon us as Christians. We are given the responsibility of taking the word of God to others. We are appointed to bear fruit. We have been grafted on the true word of God—the tree of Jesus Christ.

For by grace have you been saved; this is not your own doing. It is the gift of God. God has given us faith by which we have salvation. We must accept this gift and its responsibilities to take it to others.

Faith is really a gift and a decision. It is a gift in which God reveals Himself in Christ and enables us to respond in trusting love and obedience. Even the decision is helped for, "No one can say Jesus is Lord" except by the Holy Spirit.

The decision and spreading of the word of God's love came through others. The real acceptance of Christ as Savior and Lord is to enter His Church, for life in Christ is life in His fellowship, sharing with neighbors.

It is through others in the community of redemption that life is truly expressed. The grace of Christ is never expressed or felt in isolation.

The church is the gathering of those redeemed and those seeking redemption. "It is the fellowship of those who have been called of God in Christ through the Holy Spirit for salvation and service, and who have responded to this call." It is a community of believers who have been brought into a new relationship to God and to each other through the grace of Jesus Christ.

The church is not to be exclusive or stable. It is called to declare the wonderful deeds of God. It's primary mission is to proclaim in love the unsearchable riches of Christ.

I am the calling of the church collectively and Christians individually to present Jesus Christ in the power of the Holy Spirit to the world. This must be done with the spirit and love of Christ and in obedience to Him.

The church that neglects spreading the word of God does so at its own risk. If the sense of mission to do so is lost, then the church must re-evaluate its position and relation to Christ.

The work of all Christians is to present the Gospel to the world. "Not only in word, but also in power and in the Holy Spirit and in conviction." When the church does this in faithful obedience, then she can know that God makes His appeal through her.

Let the church carry out its mission through you. Proclaim the faith given us by God. This faith will sustain and carry you through this life, and then life will be meaningful and satisfying.

Margaret Earwood batiks display in WPB

BELLE GLADE — Margaret Earwood, prominent local artist and former art teacher in the county school system and at Glades Day School, will have an exhibit of batik paintings during the month of July at the Burdines store in West Palm Beach.

Some 20 of her original works, including several which have won first-place awards in area art shows, will be displayed in the department store dining room beginning July 2.

A member of the Florida Art Education Association, the Norton Gallery and its Artists Guild, and the Lake Worth Art League, Mrs. Earwood studied batik with Sister Remy Rover, well-known textile instructor of Mount Mary College in Milwaukee.

Primarily a watercolorist,

Mrs. Earwood works in several media, including oil, silk screen, tie-dye, printing and copper enameling. She has presented three one-man shows and was one of four artists invited to show in a recent Lake Worth Art League exhibit.

Mrs. Earwood continues to teach a small class privately and last winter taught batik painting class at Palm Beach Junior College Glades Campus.

She is a graduate of Stetson University who began her art studies at the University of Indiana at Bloomington. She has also done graduate work at the University of Tennessee, Florida State University, and the University of Florida. For many years she has attended sessions at the Arrowmount School of Crafts.

Liberty is special

More so than in many other years, patriotism is on the minds of Americans.

World events — refugees streaming to our shores, unrest in Iran, the invasion of Afghanistan — have combined to prove once again what a great nation we have.

Patriotism is on the minds of Americans because the thought that "Liberty is Special" never had a clearer meaning. Liberty is a hard-won right, a right which most people of the world do not enjoy.

Everglades Federal Savings and Loan Association is helping Glades residents show their patriotism this Fourth of July by sponsoring the full-color American flag on the cover of this week's newspaper.

While we enjoy "Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness," as spelled out in the Declaration of Independence, our hostages in Iran have been imprisoned over 200 days.

Showing the flag has become a symbol of our support for the hostages, and of the principles and beliefs on which the country was founded.

A note about our flag sponsor: Everglades Federal is Palm Beach County's oldest Saving and Loan Association, having been founded in 1933. It received the eighth S and L charter granted in the state and the 47th in the nation.

Everglades Federal helped rebuild communities in western Palm Beach County which had been hit by the Great Depression and the hurricanes of the 1920s. Today, Everglades Federal Savings and Loan Association's assets exceed $64 million with branch offices in Clewiston, Pahokee, Royal Palm Beach and most recently in Palm Beach Gardens.

The main office is located on Main Street in Belle Glade. The original founder's dream was to serve each new branch office wherever Everglades Federal can fulfill the financial needs of a growing community.

Area Church News

"O Say Can You See"

Festooning five fingers streak down the sky while soft July breezes stir across upturned faces and the band plays softly.

Suddenly I see beyond the framework of our celebration. I see fireworks and flags, hard-boiled eggs and potato salad, a parade down Main Street, cotton candy, roller coasters, and the dance at the country club. I see a little band of people crossing the ocean to make a new life. A woodsman hacking a trail westward, a man and his woman working together to make a home in the new wilderness. I see roses of graves in France, marking fallen doughboys. Four young men raising a flag on two limbs, and an astronaut blasting off to yet a new frontier. I see a sweet land of liberty.

One of the most important things this land stands for is a man's right to worship God in the way he wants. Go to your church and take advantage of this precious heritage.

Pahokee rock concert July 3

PAHOKEE—A rock concert featuring the sounds of Shotgun Stone will be presented by the Prince Theatre on July 3 to kick off Independence Day festivities for the city.

The primary goal of the Prince Theatre, according to Maxine Moon, "has always been to bring a variety of entertainment that appeals to every age group in the Glades community. Yet, in the Glades, there has never been a specialty program for the younger age group. We hope to accomplish this through this concert."

Mrs. Moon is the theatre director and chairperson for the rock concert.

She said the theatre has gone on record as having quality entertainment that would be offensive to no one and proper supervision will always be provided at theatre functions.

Mrs. Moon said the proceeds from the event will be used to purchase sound equipment for the theatre.

Shotgun Stone, she said, is a nationally known rock group that has come directly from Pittsburgh, Pa. to organize for a national tour. This gives the Glades area its first access to a nationally recognized rock group.

Mrs. Moon said the group's music is comparable to that of Jefferson Starship. The two-hour long show will begin at 8 p.m.

A limited number of tickets are on sale at the Prince theatre box office.

County plans mango workshop July 22

WEST PALM BEACH — How to select, grow, prepare, and preserve various varieties of mangoes will be the theme of a Mango Madness workshop July 22.

Sponsored by the County Cooperative Extension Service, the program will be held from 10 a.m. until noon at the Mounts Building, 531 Military Trail.

Mrs. Beverly Harrington, Extension Home Economics Agent, and Gene Janyer, Urban Horticulturist, will conduct the program.

ADVERTISEMENT FORBIDS

Sealed proposals for furnishing all plant, labor, materials and equipment and performing all work necessary to clean, televise internally, and test and seal joints in the designated sanitary sewer lines for the rehabilitation of a portion of the Avenue "C" sanitary sewage collection system for the City of Belle Glade, Florida, will be received at the Office of the City Clerk, City Hall, Belle Glade, Florida, until 11:50 A.M., July 24, 1980, at which time bids will be opened and publicly read aloud. Bids received after the above time and date will be returned unopened.

The work consist of the following:

Seal and test 2,000 feet of 8-inch pipe in sewage collection system number 15.

The work shall be constructed in accordance with the Drawings and Project Manuals (including Specifications) which are available for inspection at the Engineer's Office at 5000 U.S. Highway No. 1, North, Ormond Beach, Florida, and at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, Belle Glade, Florida.

Copies of the Drawings and Project Manuals may be obtained from Briley, Wild & Associates, Consulting Engineers & Planners, P.O. Box 607, Ormond Beach, Florida, 32074, or from the City of Belle Glade, 110 S.W. Ave. 2, Belle Glade, Florida, 33430, upon receipt of a deposit of $50.00. Deposit checks should be made payable to Briley, Wild & Associates.

One-half of the deposit will be refunded upon return of the Drawings and Project Manuals in satisfactory condition within thirty (30) days after receipt of bids.

The Owner reserves the right to reject any and all bids, and the award, if award is made, will be made to the lowest responsible bidder whose qualifications indicate the award will be in the best interest of the Owner and whose proposal complies with all the prescribed requirements.

Bids shall be:

1. Submitted on standard forms which will be furnished with the Project Manual;
2. Accompanied by a certified check (drawn in favor of the City) or by a Bid Bond in the amount of ten percent (10%) of the total bid;
3. Irrevocable after the time and date set for the opening of bids and for a period of thirty (30) day thereafter;

4. Submitted in sealed envelopes marked "Bid for Avenue 'C' Sanitary Sewage Collection System Rehabilitation, Belle Glade, Florida." In addition, the bidder's name and address shall be shown on the outside of the sealed envelope. If submitted by mail, the sealed envelope shall be enclosed in a separate mailing envelope.

The City of Belle Glade reserves the right to waive in formalities and to reject any or all bids.
